

G.R.E.A.T. Teams

How Championship Leaders Build High-Performance Project Teams

Of all the skills, capabilities, resources and assets that make organizations strong, it is team leadership that makes them great.

Today's competitive organization brings together multi-discipline, cross functional workgroups organized around deliverables. To be effective in these project-centric environments, each and every workgroup must quickly transform itself into a high-performance team.

This program helps good people become better leaders by applying the G.R.E.A.T. Teams principles. Participants sharpen their leadership skills along five guiding principles: Goals, Roles, Environment, Authenticity, and Trust. They'll learn how to appeal to the individual team member's motivations, focus activity on timely results, foster communication and collaboration, and build genuine engagement for better teams, stronger organizations, and lasting success.

- Principles of G.R.E.A.T. team leadership
- Five questions every leader must answer
- How to motivate and engage (almost) everyone
- Are you leading volunteers or volun-tolds?
- Three keys to authentic participation and genuine engagement

Format

60 to 90 minute program

Speaker Biography

Ron Black knows what it takes to lead people and organizations through growth, turbulence, and change. His programs help business owners, leaders, and professionals create high-performance organizations.

As the founder of nine businesses, a four-time turnaround executive, and Fortune 500 marketing VP, Ron's approach was forged hands-on.

He has delivered over 1500 keynote, seminar, and workshop programs in 47 states, throughout Canada and Australia, in Columbia, S.A. and Moscow, Russia.

